A DAY'S DISASTERS.

Frightful Loss of Life on the Grand Trunk.

The Worst Disasters in the History of Canada.

Other Fatal Accidents, Wrecks and Fires.

Railway Disaster.

TORONTO, January 2.—One of the most frightful railway accidents that ever occurred in Canada took place this morning at five minutes of seven. About fifteen minutes previous a suburban train consisting of a dummy engine and two cars on the Great Western divison of the Grand Trunk left the union station having aboard about 60 passengers, chiefly employes of the bolt and iron works residing in this city who were going to their work. Each was happier than the other, and although the weather was severely cold and a gale blowing snow against the car windows the merry crowd did not heed it as they told how they spent New Year's. On rounding a sharp curve just before reaching the bolt works the engineer saw a freight train coming thundering down the grade towards him. He reversed his engine, blew a warning and with the fireman jumped for his life. The conductor heard the warning and shouting "Jump, boys, for your lives," sprang into the snow. In a second more there was a terrific crash. The engine of the freight train knocked the boiler of the dummy clear through the first car, crushing the unfortunate passengers in every direction and pinning many to the floor. The impetus was so great the engine actually mounted the trucks of the dummy, which kept the rails, and remained on their balance. The engineer of the freight train, when he saw the collision was inevitable, sprang from his engine, but Thomas, the fireman, was killed instantly.

To add to the horror of the scene the boiler of the dummy exploded and the steam and boiling water carried death and terrible injuries to the mangled and bleeding men. The first passenger car was a terrible wreck and several hours elapsed before the poor fellows buried beneath the debris were extricated. A relief party of thirty or forty men were soon on the scene and at once set at work to rescue the sufferers, and at about 10 o'clock the dead and injured were on their way to the city. On arriving at the union station an ambulance station wagon and several cabs and busses were in waiting. A large crowd had gathered and as one after another of the dead or wounded was carried from the car to a conveyance many turned sick at the sight which beggars description. There were fifteen bodies laid side by side in rows on opposite sides of the room. Mothers and sisters, fathers and brothers were to be seen passing from body to body and with trembling hands lifting a coverlet to gaze at the face of the dead. Now and again a cry of anguish tells too plainly the discovery of some dear one.

At the hospital on the arrival of the wounded the doctors immediately set to work sewing up the wounds and did all in their power to alleviate the sufferings of the unfortunate men. One man, John Rowlett, died shortly after his arrival at the hospital. When found among the debris he spoke cheerfully and asked to be allowed to walk. On looking down he cried, "Oh, God, my legs are off;" and so they were, burned off.

Coroner Lynde empaneled a jury, who received the bodies and then adjourned till two o'clock, when they again met; some evidence was taken and further adjournment made. Barber, conductor of the freight train, was immediately placed under arrest. He admitted that he got orders at Hamilton to run to Owen's wharf, avoiding all regular trains. He looked at the time table and forgot the suburban train on the list of regular trains, hence the accident. Public sympathies are aroused for the unfortunate widows and children. Already subscription lists are started and offers of entertainments made to provide funds. Several families of the men killed are in poor circumstances.

Besides Charles Thomas, fireman of the freight train, the following were killed instantly: G. A. Gott, leaves a wife and child; Joseph Keefer, wife and two children; C. Spohn, single, was to be married to-night; R. Mulligan, wife and child; J. Kerraghan, wife and family; J. W. Sites, wife and five children; Joseph McDonald, single; W. Terrill, single; Thomas Burns, single; G. Prescott, single; George Seale, single; John McKenzie, single; Charles Starley, boy, aged 14. Seven have died in the hospital: John Rowlett, leaves wife and child; John Lynch, wife and family; Eddie Robinson, a boy; Samuel Bailey, widower, but leaves family; H. C. Kerman, wife and child only six days old; Fred Bothrod, single; Hugh Cunningham, wife and three children. Three others are not expected to live through the night.

The severely injured are: W. Rogers, Patrick Norton, Matthew Walker, Pat. Cavanagh. The following slightly injured: W. Fitzgerald, Richard Carruthers, Michael Kelly, Chas. McDonald and James Kelly, Alex. Banks, John Aggett, John Corrigan, Victor Gireaux, Thos. McDonald and two Montgomery brothers. Damage to rolling stock $2,000. General Manager Hickson of the Grand Trunk immediately wired Wragge, local manager, to give every care and attention to the wounded.

Fatal Accidents.

NAPOLEON, O., January 2. A west-bound express on the Wabash road last night struck a wagon containing five young men, killing Frank Long and Wm. Rhores, and badly injuring George Arps. Long leaves a wife.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., January 2.—A passenger train on the Illinois Central struck a broken rail between Masser and Barreum this morning.—A sleeper and two passenger coaches were thrown down a fifteen-foot embankment. Mrs. J. H. Smith, of Ohio, Barnum county, Illinois, was instantly killed and seven persons more or less injured.

NEW YORK, January 2. An elevator, at Smith Bros.' brewery, fell to-day, seriously injuring five persons, including the two proprietors, Donald and McPherson Smith. The others injured are Otis Cole and George W. Edemeser, who were visiting the building, and Charles Saver an employe.

NEW YORK, January 2. Charles F. Abbey, colored, fell through the elevator shaft of the Burlington hotel and was probably fatally injured.

HOUGHTON, Mich., January 2.—The bursting of the Huron mill dam, situated one mile from here, resulted in the loss of five lives, as follows: Charles B. Raymond, teller First National bank of Houghton; his son and servant girl, and Howay Raymond and son of Allouese.

Wreck and Death.

PITTSBURG, January 2. An accident occurred at Davis Island dam, nine miles from this city, at two this morning, by which one man is known to have lost his life, while three others have probably perished, as they are still missing. Shortly after midnight the tow boats J. N. Burton and John I. Case left the city with a tow for lower ports. Their progress was slow owing to ice and strong current. When Davis Island was reached the boats lost control of their tows and swung against the south piers. Three coal boats sunk at once. The Case drifted head on to Newell Island, where it lodged. The Buxton was not so fortunate. The shock of the collision threw the fire from under her boilers and in two minutes she was burning in a dozen places. The crew, to the number of 20 men, became panic-stricken and several jumped overboard. Midway between the dam and Newell Island the boat careened and went down in shallow water. The Case not having been injured put out a yawl and succeeded in picking up sixteen of the Bunton's crew. It is possible the three still missing have managed to reach shore, but up to noon to-day they have not reported. The steamer Bunton is a total loss. She was owned by Walton & Co., of this city, and valued at $25,000. Loaded coal boats sunk were valued at $25,000, making a total loss of $50,000. No insurance. The accident is attributed to neglect to have the government signal lighted.

Fires.

ST. LOUIS, January 2. The steamboats Colorado and City of Alton burned to the water's edge in the southern part of the city this morning. The overturning of a stove on the Colorado was the cause of the fire. The City of Alton had been dismantled. Each boat was valued at $90,000; insured.

LOUISVILLE, January 2. Fire early this morning destroyed Deen's furniture building at 808 and 810 Market street. Loss on building $15,000; on contents $20,000; two-thirds insured; other losses $5,000.

CLEVELAND, January 3.- At one o'clock this morning fire was raging at the Republic oil works. The coopershop is in flames. Loss not ascertained to-night.

Eastern Storm.

CHICAGO, January 2.—Inter-Ocean specials report severe driving and drifting snow storms with low temperature throughout portions of Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana and Illinois. It is now snowing here but has been going down ever since noon.

QUEBEC, January 2.—The snow storm which set in yesterday morning increased in violence until at the present time railroads are all blocked.

BUFFALO, January 2.—A severe storm, accompanied by snow, has raged nearly all day and the wind has been blowing all day at the rate of 45 to 55 miles per hour. Trains are somewhat delayed.

McCrary's Resignation.

KEOKUK, Iowa, January 2. George W. McCrary, judge of the eighth United States judicial circuit, embracing Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, Nebraska and Colorado, forwarded his resignation to the president to-night, to take effect March 1st. He has contracted with the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad to fill the position of general counsellor for five years. He will have his headquarters at Kansas City.

A Sad Case.

LEXINGTON, Ky., January 2.—W. Irving Loudell, said to be from Philadelphia, died here last night from hunger and exposure. He had reached here a few days ago with his brother twelve years old and only a dollar. He gave that to a boarding house for his brother, refusing to eat himself. He found employment as brakeman and after thirty-six hours exposure in sleet and snow returned and died.

Jail Break.

OTTUMWA, Ia., January 2. James Williams, alias O'Brien, confined in the county jail in this city, at 10 o'clock, at ten o'clock to-day escaped, shooting Deal, the turnkey. Up to 3 p. m. the prisoner had not been captured. How the prisoner obtained a pistol is a mystery. Williams is a well known desperado.

An Archbishop's Funeral.

NEW ORLEANS, January 2.—The grand religious civic and military obsequies of the late Archbishop Perche took place to-day. The procession was a large one, including Catholic clergy, state and city officials, military, various Catholic societies, Sisters of Charity and Mercy in charge of inmates of Catholic asylums and a concourse of citizens.

Orange and Catholic.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., January 2.—Lord Derby, colonial secretary, has offered the Newfoundland government military and naval aid to prevent a recurrence of rioting. Dispatches received contain alarming accounts of the state of public feeling at Harbor Grace, Carbonear and other places. Further disturbance is feared.

SULLIVAN'S SLUGGERS.

The Pugilistic Party Give Denver Police Trouble.

But the Revolver Proves a Powerful Argument.

Verdict of Not Guilty Returned in the Bond Case.

Troublesome Pugilists.

DENVER, January 2.—All the parties engaged in the fight this morning in front of the Arcade saloon were arraigned before Judge Mullahey at noon. The facts as shown by the evidence are about as follows: Harley McCoy, a notorious character, entered the Arcade for the purpose, as he states, of getting something to eat, and took a seat at a table at which Slade and some friends were sitting. The ball was opened by Slade, who hit McCoy in the side and said he could do him up for a sucker. McCoy replied that perhaps he could whip him, but that he did not propose to give him a chance. McCoy then got up and left the table. Slade followed him to the bar. McCoy then hit him in the face and picking up a heavy poker started towards Slade. One of the men in the saloon interfered and got hit over the head with the poker, inflicting a painful cut. While this was going on some one had gone for a policeman. Officer Dailey was found on the corner and arrested one of the Slade party. He started towards Sixteenth street with the man, who was using all the resistance he could. The officer then called upon Harley McCoy and Matt Keefe to assist him. About this time some one in Slade's party (McCoy says it was Slade) struck Dailey from the rear and knocked him down and kicked him in the face. In falling Dailey dropped his pistol. McCoy snatched it up and leveling it at Slade, who was advancing, said to him: "Get, or I'll shoot your head off." Slade then turned and ran down Sixteenth street to the alley way and turned into it towards Seventeenth street. During the melee William Larche attempted to assist the officer. Before he could accomplish anything some one knocked him down and kicked him in the face. The heavy boot heel struck the man's forehead and inflicted a very severe wound. A moment after Slade disappeared Roundsman James Connors arrived. The wounded officer and Larche were taken to police headquarters, where Dr. Anderson attended them. Mr. Connors arrested John Moore, one of the Slade party. Moore made an attempted to resist, but although he is a large man the roundsman proved too much for him, and when the gentleman appeared in the police court his left eye was bloodshot, badly swelled and entirely closed. Moore was taken to jail and Mr. Connors started out in search of Mr. Slade. The officer found his man in the rear of Murphy's saloon. At first the slugger was inclined to resist, but seeing that it would be to no purpose he decided to go and was hustled off towards the city jail. The officer soon learned the whereabouts of the third man of Slade's party engaged in the row, and an officer was sent for him. Judge Mullahey imposed fines on Mr. Slade amounting to $95, distributed as follows: Drunk, $13 and costs; disturbance, $25 and costs; resisting an officer, $25 and costs. Mr. Sullivan's treasurer paid the fines.

Just after the fight occurred this morning Sullivan went into the American House and asked the proprietor, Charles H. Smith, for his revolver, saying he wanted to do up a fellow on Larimer street. Mr. Smith told him he could not have the gun. Thereupon Sullivan walked around the counter for the purpose of taking it in spite of Mr. Smith, but before he could get in reach of it Mr. Smith seized it and leveling it at the eminent slugger's head told him to leave the house. At first Sullivan made a motion to hit Mr. Smith, but upon being told by that gentleman that if he attempted such a thing he would get his brains scattered around over the floor, he walked out with one of Smith's hands on his collar and the other pointing the gun at his head.

The Butler Murder.

DENVER, January 2.—At 2 o'clock this afternoon the inquest in the Butler murder case was resumed before Coroner McHatton. Guy, who is under arrest charged with committing the murder, has repeatedly made the statement that he has not had a gun in his hands for three years and more. To-day two witnesses, one a street car driver on the Welton line, testified that last Friday, two days before the murder, that they saw Guy carrying a shot gun. One of them asked him where he was going. Guy replied, "I'm going hunting." The evidence thus far submitted surely points to Guy as the guilty man.

Greeley Relief.

WASHINGTON, January 2.—The following gentlemen appeared to-day before the Arctic board and presented plans for the rescue of Lieutenant Greeley and party: Capt. Geo. E. Tyson, of the Hall expedition; Lieut. Y. E. Hunt, United States navy, one of the officers of the Rodgers on her expedition in search of the Jeanette; Lieutenant Garlington, who commanded the last expedition; and Lieut. P. H. Ray, who had charge of the Point Barrow, Alaska, signal station for two years. Garlington, who is extremely anxious to return to the Arctic regions in search of Greeley, proposes that the coming expedition be commanded by himself and the relief ship by Lieutenant Collarem. A letter was received from Lieutenant Schwatka setting forth his views in respect to the conduct of the proposed expedition and one from General Miles recommending that Schwatka be placed in command.

Mail Transportation.

WASHINGTON, January 1.—The postmaster-general has sent to congress the report of the committee which was appointed to prepare an improve plan for carrying the mails on railroad routes. The committee was composed of General Richard A. Elmer, second assistant postmaster-general; W. B. Thompson, general superintendent of the railway mail service, and Isaac C. Slater, superintendent of railway adjustment. The committee find that each decade has witnessed a doubling of the service, and if the present rates of increase and pay are maintained, the year 1900 will see a service by mail over at least two hundred thousand miles of road, with an annual cost of twenty-four millions. When the system of weighing the mails was first established in 1867 the most astonishing inconsistencies were discovered in the matter of compensation. At that time the mails were generally carried in baggage cars, and it was found that on fifteen lines, receiving pay at the rate of $200 per mile, the daily services ranged from an average of more than 10,000 pounds on one line to less than 400 pounds on another. That is, one received the same rate for carrying the lesser amount that the other did for the greater. On roads receiving $150 per mile the service ranged from 7,500 pounds to less than 800 pounds, while on roads where a $50 rate was paid the greatest average for the daily service was 6,448 pounds, and the least 12 pounds. The act of 1883 brought some degree of order out of this confusion, in that it prescribed an even rate of pay for transporting the like daily average in weight of the mails, but on the vital points of frequency, speed and room, in which to distribute the mails, there was but little advance over the previous law. The practical objections to the present law, the committee says, are as follows:

First—No discrimination is made between the service as performed in apartment cars, and accomplished by clerks, and the closed mails, which are carried in bulk in the baggage cars.

Second—The matter of frequency is covered by the infinite expression, "due frequency," and no discrimination is made where the same weight of mail is carried between a line running six, seven, twelve or fourteen round trips per week, the less frequent securing the same rate as the most frequent.

Third—The matter of speed is disposed of with the expression of "due frequency and speed," and does not enter into the rate of compensation.

Fourth—In the size of the cars or the apartments to be used. They are not provided in a manner sufficiently definite to be construed as expressing the requirements of the post-office department, with regard to its 115,000 miles of postal service.

Fifth—The special allowance for railway postoffices is unreasonable in the method of compensating for the service required.

Sixth—The regulation requiring the railroad companies to deliver the mails into the terminal offices, and also to all other offices which are not over eighty rods from their line of road, has become a serious hindrance to an efficient postal service.

Seventh—The present method is defective because of the great inequality existing, in many cases, between the weights carried and the apartments provided.

The Bond Trial.

ST. LOUIS, January 2.—A dispatch from Hillsboro, Ills., to the associated press says the jury in the Bond case returned the following verdict a little before 8 o'clock to-night: "We, the jury, find defendants not guilty of the crime charged." Judge Phillips stated before the verdict was read that no sign of approbation or dissent would be tolerated from the audience. The rendering was therefore received with silence. The defendants were congratulated by their friends. The feeling as to the verdict is divided. It is rumored that during the early part of the night a mob left Litchfield, a neighboring town, for the purpose of lynching, but so far they have failed to appear. The night is bitter cold and very unfavorable for out door operations. Defendants will remain with the jury to-night in the court house. All is quiet at present writing.

Railroad Foreclosures.

CHICAGO, January 2.—The Railway Age will publish a summary of railway foreclosures in '83. The showing is rather favorable than otherwise, taking into consideration the fact that all roads foreclosed have been in a shaky or moribund condition for several years. The foreclosures covered eighteen lines, with a total of 124 miles of track, $13,825,000 capital stock and approximate $28,505,000 bonds and debts. Over half of this mileage and liabilities belonged to two lines, the Columbus, Chicago & Indiana Central and the Cleveland, Tuscarora Valley & Wheeling. None of the other lines has as much as 60 miles of track and two of them only six. The total capital invested, stock, bonds and debt, $17,330,000, against $65,426,000 in foreclosed roads in 1882, $137,024,000 in '81 and $263,882,000 in '80.

The Iron Industry.

PHILADELPHIA, January 2. The secretary of the American Iron and Steel association in his review of the year's trade estimates the shrinkage in price of No. 1 anthracite foundry pig iron at four dollars a ton; steel rails, five dollars a ton; bar iron, 1-10 cents a pound, and nails one dollar. The secretary says: "It will be seen that the decline is very serious, much more serious than is generally supposed. It would seem prices can't go lower than they now are and this theory would appear to be sustained by the fact that owners of furnaces, rolling mills and steel works on every hand have put out their fires because the future offered no hope of their realizing living profits."

TRAGEDY AT EASTON.

A Dispute Over a New Year's Game of Cards

Results in the Probable Fatal Shooting of W. C. Prigmore.

Lewis Taylor, who Did the Shooting, in the County Jail.

News reached here yesterday morning to the effect that a shooting scrape had occurred at Easton a little town on the Denver & New Orleans in El Paso county about 30 miles northeast from Colorado Springs on the night previous. Word was merely sent to Sheriff Dana that he was wanted there, no particulars being given, not even the names of the parties implicated in the shooting. Mr. Dana being busy, dispatched Under Sheriff Jackson to look up the case. Last evening Mr. Jackson and Constable elect Brazelton of Easton, with Lewis Taylor in their custody, arrived in the city and he now occupies a cell in the county jail.

From Under Sheriff Jackson, who was interviewed upon his return last night, we learned the following particulars of the shooting: On New Year's night, about 12 o'clock, W. C. Prigmore and Lewis Taylor were engaged in playing a game of cards in John Hanks' saloon at Easton. They became involved in some dispute over the game and hot words ensued. Both men had been drinking and were in a partially intoxicated condition. During the progress of the dispute Taylor walked behind the bar and got a revolver which he kept there, he being an intimate friend of the proprietor. Those in the room persuaded him not to use it and tried to take the weapon away from him, but did not succeed. Before any further trouble occurred Prigmore was ejected from the saloon by the proprietor. He returned soon afterward, however, and upon entering the door Taylor called him some pretty hard names, which rather exasperated him and he either struck or pushed Taylor. The latter pulled his revolver and began shooting. Five shots were discharged from the revolver before he stopped, four of these taking effect in Prigmore's body. At the time Taylor was so close to Prigmore that the powder burned his clothes in several places. Taylor was subsequently arrested by Constable Brazleton and held in custody until Sheriff Jackson reached there.

There were quite a number in the saloon at the time the fracas began, but many of them ran out into the street. There were, however, three witnesses to the shooting. Prigmore was unarmed, not even having so much as a knife in his possession, or anything else with which to defend himself. By talking with both Mr. Jackson and Mr. Brazleton we would draw the conclusion that the sentiment of the people is rather against Taylor and in favor of Prigmore. The latter has resided in the vicinity of Easton between two and three years and was very generally respected and not considered a quarrelsome man. He is single and about thirty-five years of age. Taylor is comparatively a new comer, having resided there only two or three months. He is between twenty-eight and thirty years of age and a laborer. From what we can learn his reputation is not a very enviable one, he being rather inclined to convey the impression that he is a "bad man." He has worked some about Easton and was generally a hanger on about Hanks' saloon, they having been acquainted in the east.

Dr. Crocker, of this city, was summoned to the bedside of the wounded man, going to Easton on the same train with Under Sheriff Jackson. He also returned last night. He gives as his opinion that there is no possible chance for Prigmore to live and that he will probably die before this account is read.

Two of the bullets discharged from Taylor's revolver entered the stomach, one the left side just beneath the lower rib and the fourth passed entirely through the wrist. The revolver was a 38 caliber, double-action Smith & Wesson, almost new.

Taylor seems very reticent about the affair and is not inclined to talk much about it. He will be retained in custody until the result of Prigmore's wounds are known.

ORANGE BLOSSOMS.

New Year's Day Oaths Taken by Two Couples.

RUDOLPH-WILSON.

Another of those enjoyable and pleasant occasions known as weddings occurred in this city New Year's evening at the residence of John Wilson, the contracting parties being Mr. Walter S. Rudolph, of Poncha Springs, and Miss Hattie J. Wilson, of this city. The ceremony was performed at 6:30 p. m. by Revs T. C. Kirkwood, and after the hearty congratulations of all a most bounteous repast was served, to which all did ample justice. The happy couple left on the 10.40 train and after a visit with friends in Canon City will take up their future home in Poncha, where Mr. Rudolph has charge of the Presbyterian congregation.

Mr. Rudolph has a number of intimate friends in this city. Of Miss Wilson, we can but speak in praise. All concede her to be one of Colorado Springs' best young ladies. She has for some time been connected with the schools here, and her work was always done with earnestness and success. Her host of friends join in wishing her unalloyed happiness and prosperity in her new home. A number of handsome and valuable presents were received, a list of which is given below:

One set table linen, Miss M. A. Edwards and Miss Anna McIlrath.

Majolica tea set, butter chips and bread plate, Miss Helena Durr.

Salad dish, Miss Fannie Lair.

One set silver tablespoons, one set silver tea spoons and sugar spoon, Clarence and Maggie Stark, Louisiana, Mo.

One parlor lamp, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Loud.

Macreme tidy, Miss Anna Giddings.

One set cut glasses, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Miller.

Silver soup ladle, Mrs. J. T. Wilson, St. Louis.

Silver napkin ring, Mrs. A. M. Shaw.

One set thread lace, Miss Brainerd.

Silver caster, Mr. and Mrs. Nat Wilson.

Silver butter dish, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Stark, Elbert, Colo.

Silver tea set, John and Thomas Wilson.

Clock, J. Walter Wilson.

Oil painted plaque, Mrs. L. K. Bowen.

Plate glass mirror, Miss Clara S. Brewster.

Silver butter dish, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Marsh.

Pickle castor, Mr. and Mrs. A. Sagendorf.

Doré Bible gallery, R. D. Lord, New York city.

Student's lamp, Miss Buck, Brooklyn, N. Y.

One china tea set, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Webster, Canon City.

One set knives and forks, Mrs. James True, Poncha Springs.

One building lot in Poncha Springs, Mr. James True.

One-half dozen linen doylies, Edna Curtis.

Cake basket, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Stark.

Sugar spoon, Misses Noyes and Wickard.

MOUNT-ODELL.

On New Year's afternoon at 5 o'clock Mr. Floyd Mount and Miss Kate Odell, both deaf mutes, were united in marriage in the parlors of the Deaf Mute Institute. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. R. Kieffer, rector of Grace Episcopal church, Professor Blattner acting as interpreter. Everything was very nicely arranged for the occasion. The invited guests, including the friends of the contracting parties, also Hon. Matt France, C. H. White and others, were seated in a semi-circle in the center of the room and just back of them stood the pupils of the institute. The ceremony, although somewhat lengthy, was very impressive, Rev. Mr. Kieffer reading it from the ritual and Prof. Blattner interpreting it in sentences. Immediately after the ceremony both guests and pupils passed by in file and extended their congratulations to the bride and groom. The newly wedded pair and the guests then adjourned to the dining room, where a sumptuous repast was served. Mr. and Mrs. Mount were the recipients of a large number of presents.

Both the contracting parties are graduates of the institute, Miss Odell having been in attendance there for five or six years. Since graduating last term she has been in the employ of the institute and is a great favorite with the pupils. Mr. Mount is a compositor, having learned his trade at the institute. He is now and has been for some time an employe of the Republic office. They will make Colorado Springs their home.

That Foot Ball Game.

The following which appeared in the columns of the Denver Tribune on New Year's day rather exasperated the Crowell boys: "There will in all probability be no foot ball game to-day. It seems that when Mr. Martin, the captain of the Colorado Springs club, was in the city making the match he stipulated that the game would not take place in the snow or muddy ground. In accordance with this the Rugbys telegraphed yesterday to the Crowells that the grounds in Denver were carpeted with an inch or two of the "beautiful." This postponed the game. The tender house plants of the Colorado Springs conservatory could not think of playing on the cold damp ground, and then they might fall down in the snow. They are to be pitied. It is a poor eleven that cannot play foot ball in any weather, and it has been generally understood that it was a winter sport and could be played in rain or snow, in water or mud as well as on a sunshiny dry day. Better things were expected of the Crowells by Denver people."

In response to the above we are requested to publish the following:

COLORADO SPRINGS, January 2d.

To the Editor of the GAZETTE.

I see by yesterday's Denver Tribune that in making arrangements for the game to be played in Denver on New Year's day, in behalf of the "tender house plants of the Colorado Springs conservatory" I stipulated that the game would not take place on muddy ground or in the snow. In justice to ourselves I desire to say that no such stipulation was made on my part, but instead, it was to be left entirely to the Denver team to decide as to the fitness of the weather. They were to let us know a day previously, which they did by sending the following telegram: "Too disagreeable to play: two inches snow. Write to-day." So it will be seen that the "tender house plants" had nought to do with failure of the game, and had Mr. B., of the Tribune, taken pains to investigate our failure to be present he would have been better able to have judged our dread of rain or snow. We had made all arrangements and expected to go until receipt of their telegram. But in order to give the Rugby boys of Denver a chance to test our tenderness, I will say for the "house plants" that, if satisfactory to them, we will play them a game in Denver Saturday next RAIN, BLOW OR SNOW; game to be subject to same arrangements as previously made. Respectfully,

J. R. MARTIN,
Captain of "Tender House Plants."

MISS FAITHFULL'S LECTURE

The number and quality of the audience that met to listen to Miss Faithfull's lecture on "Modern Shams" last evening was a great tribute of respect to her work and worth Larger audiences have assembled, but few that comprised so large a number of intelligent thinking people The Hon H A Risley, at the request of President Tenney, who was unable to be present, presided and introduced Miss Faithfull The matter of the lecture and its delivery were fully equal to expectation Miss Faithfull strives for no oratorical effect by the usual methods She spoke in an ordinary conversational tone without gesture, but her voice was so clear and her enunciation so perfect that she was heard in every part of the house She impresses one as having sober truth to tell and she tells it in an earnest, impressive manner Her lecture was not a succession of pleasing, brilliant sentences, but was marked by a high moral purpose to benefit those she addressed It was a fearless, outspoken plea for honesty, simplicity and right living Some truths she uttered she must have known would be disagreeable to many, but she did not purpose to prophesy smooth things Her life has largely been spent in England and the lecture was largely founded upon her observations there, but whenever she alluded to American shams she was just and fair, though her statements were not always palatable She showed familiarity with both our political and social life And perhaps her subject was more profitable than that of any other lecturer who has come to tell us in this country when the majority rules, that the majority is incompetent to rule and should not be trusted with power Though with rude hands she tore away the shams of our day, she did not stop there, but very sensibly and pertinently pointed out the remedies

At the close of the lecture, the Hon. H A Risley read a resolution thanking Miss Faithfull for her "earnest, sensible, practical, and well pronounced address," and the audience adopted it by a very decided vote in the affirmative

Ex Governor Butler must have been up to his old campaign tricks again judging from the following contained in the Cincinnati Commercial 'Governor Butler may endeavor to explain his mistake in censuring 'the pardon of the defaulter Stickney, supposing him to have been pardoned by Governor Long ,his predecessor, but he will "never recover from the fact that in so doing 'he condemned his own act, for it was he and 'none other, who pardoned the defaulter If 'there was anything wrong in pardoning him 'before the expiration of his sentence, it can 'make no difference in the measure of that 'wrong, by whom it was done If no wrong "was done, as the governor now urges, then "his censure was uncalled for, and was a "manifest attempt to injure the reputation of a previous executive, and to do it at the expense of the truth "

We do not know definitely that the pupils who suffered at the late fire have received clothing and money equal to their loss We hope to morrow to make a statement regarding it But we do know that nothing has been done to pay other losses The teachers are said to have lost in personal effects, books, furniture, etc , nearly $1,000, and the college some $2,500 We wish there were some means to meet and pay this loss The college was not in a condition to suffer such a loss We cannot suggest any means of repaying this loss now, but we wish some of our well to-do public spirited citizens would take the matter into consideration and suggest some plan

A friend has pointed out an alleged sham" in this city It is said that all our people profess to come from the first families in the cities or towns where they lived This may or may not be a just statement Our readers know in their individual cases who her this is done and if so whether it is true But it is peculiarly a sham' to do this in a western town where a man is usually taken for what he is regardless of what his connections may have been We prefer to honor the founder of a family than one who is many generations off from so distinguished a man

The postmaster general will suggest to congress that all newspapers that publish lottery advertisements be excluded from the pound postage rate Such a law would be consistent with the effort of the postoffice department to prevent lottery companies from using the mail service in any way to help their business As newspapers did not see any injustice in previous efforts to hurt the lotteries, they should not claim any in this new suggestion which may cut down their advertising receipts.

Speaking of shams, why would it not be a good plan for newspapers to cut such terms as "elite," 'bon ton," 'creme de la creme,' 'recherche," etc They are not English words, which is one reason for not using them They are never used with discrimination and are usually applied to people to tickle their vanity and make them think they are the people they consider better and are aping

For the first time in the history of Ohio, money is likely to control the election of a senator A good sarcasm is in an advertisement published as from the democratic executive committee asking for sealed proposals for the senatorship It is not yet known whether money can control the election, but if it does Colorado will have company in her disgrace

Prince Bismarck no longer counts among the heavy weights Dr Schweninger but recently made a professor at the special request of the chancellor has, by his regime reduced the latter's weight from the average of 247 pounds which he maintained for nearly twelve years to 195 pounds The prince's health however is said to be all the better for it, and his slender appearance rather becoming than otherwise

The Bloodhound

The Cornhill Magazine

When Cortes and his army were resting from their labors after the seige and destruction of Mexico, having heard many accounts of a certain king of a neighboring country called Michoacan, to the west of Mexico which king was a hereditary enemy of Montezuma, the great captain resolved to send an exploring expedition there, to ascertain if the accounts he had heard of the greatness of the monarch and the richness of his country were true To this end he made choice of a soldier of fortune named Montano, a man of some education, for he wrote an account of his journey, and to him he gave as colleagues one Penalosa and two others, all "men of discretion and valor" Penalosa owed this distinction to his being the owner of a very celebrated dog who had not his equal in New Spain "So fierce and courageous was he," says the annalists "and so dexterous in war, and so much dreaded by the Indians that when let loose, although there might be a thousand Indians in front of him they dared not stand up before him His tactics were simple but effectual He rushed at the nearest Indian, knocking him down by his weight and the impetus of his attack, turning with amazing swiftness to another and another, till he had left a dozen or twenty men on the ground whom the Spaniards would then dispatch with their spears By this time the front rank of the enemy had generally retired to a distance, so the dog would turn around to see if those whom he had thrown down were motionless Those who lay quiet, either paralyzed with dread or already dispatched by his two-legged comrades he took no notice of, but the faintest sign of life was a signal for him to rush upon them and tear their throats to pieces with his powerful jaws These men being disposed of, he would go in search of fresh victims until tired out, or until there were no more to tear

Emerson and the Boston Reporter

Boston Traveller

Mr Emerson was once upon a time to read a paper before a select company of the cultured It was assumed in advance that it would be a masterly effort, and of course the newspapers were after it. When the philosopher mounted the platform the reporters were all ready at the tables below to catch every word Mr Emerson espied them and prefaced his paper with a request that no report should be made of his essay, as he intended to reserve it for later publication Every reporter present save one put away his paper and pencils The one exception fell to work with apparently more energy than if the sage had not asked him to desist. Mr. Emerson glanced inquiringly at him several times, and at length paused in his discourse and said "In spite of my request not to be reported, I observe one of the gentlemen at the press table is making copious notes of my paper" Instantly every eye was turned upon the offending scribe But he was not disconcerted Rising from his seat and looking at Mr. Emerson with an air of injured honesty, he replied "No, Mr Emerson, I was not doing anything of the kind I was busy writing on a private work of my own" And such was, indeed, the fact He was a writer of serial stories as well as a news gatherer for the daily press But what an estimate of Emersonian thought he must have had to calmly take up the thread of his own little tale without being in the least distracted by the unsearchable utterances of our great 'Yankee Greek," as Holmes called him There was a sublime depreciation of Emerson in that reporter's performance which Arnold cannot hope to approach

Doctors and Patients

All the Year Round

In one of our large provincial towns a middle-aged individual, suffering from indigestion and various other ailments, having been advised to consult the leading physician of the locality, was ushered into the latter's private room When he had detailed the symptoms of his malady, loss of appetite, sleepless nights, and so forth, "Ah," said the doctor I see how it is, you require plenty of air and exercise,' but we will soon bring you round Nothing so bad for the digestion as sedentary habits, desk work and that sort of thing You must manage to walk as much and as often as your business will allow By the bye, what is your business?" "Traveling pedler for the last five and twenty years," replied the patient Some few months ago one of our medical celebrities was walking down Bruton street one afternoon with a friend, when they perceived coming toward them a strikingly handsome woman Dr Z— immediately seized his companion's arm, and without saying a word crossed rapidly over to the opposite side of the street. "What is that for?" inquired the other "Why, the fact is," stammered out Hippocrates, "I don't particularly wish to meet that lady. I attended her husband last year—a very bad case indeed—and—" "I understand" interrupted his friend "he died under your care" "Worse than that" replied the physician, "a great deal worse I cured him and from what I know of her, she is not likely to forgive or forget it "

Unexplored Cities

London Spectator

The English are beginning in a vague way to realize the magnitude of India, and to comprehend that it contains some 50 000 000 more people than all Europe west of the Vistula Few, however, are quite aware of the number of its cities, or believe that it includes sixty two with more than 50 000 people, and twenty two more than 100 000, namely Bombay Calcutta, Madras, Hydrabad, Lucknow, Benares Delhi Patna, Agra, Bangalore, Umritsur, Cawnpore, Lahore, Allahabad Jeypore, Rangoon, Poona, Ahmedabad, Bareilly, Surat, Howra and Baroda We give them in order of population, but properly speaking, in the English way of counting, Howra the Southwark of Calcutta, should be included in the capital, which with it contains above 800 000 souls and is the greatest, as it is by far the wealthiest, city in the empire Below the limit of 50,000 the towns become much more numerous and there are hundreds with populations above 20 000 The majority of the latter are quite unknown to Europeans an active magistrate or two excepted, and, so far as we are aware, there is no book in English which gives the slightest account of their organizations, or of the life and people in them Yet many of them have histories of 2000 years, and in all flourish families which think themselves noble and have long pedigrees and stirring tales to narrate. We hear every now and then much of Indian princes, who in India are hardly mentioned, and of 'educated natives,' a scarcely perceptible class, but of the true "British India" as little is known at home as of the eastern provinces of Peru

A Dancing Epidemic

Chambers Journal

The earliest mention of tarantismus is found in the works of Nicolas Peotti, who died in 1480 It appeared first in Apulia and at the time of this author, seems to have fairly well established itself as a disease in that province It is spoken of as having been produced by the bite of the wolf spider, an earth species of light brown color, with black stripes, known to science as the Lycosa tarantula Apulica. This creature is found generally distributed throughout Italy and Spain, and many an old traveler has told wonderful stories of the effect of its bite, which was accredited as poisonous The part bitten, according to common belief became swollen, and smarted, the victim became low spirited, trembled, and was anxious, he was troubled with nausea, giddiness, and at length fell down in a swoon All exterior circumstances powerfully affected him he was easily excited to frenzy or depressed to melancholy, and behaved generally as a hysterical subject would do The strangest effect, or rather supposed effect, of the bite was the behavior of the patient at the sound of music for he immediately rose and danced as madly as do the wicked people in the fairy tale at the sound of the hero's enchanted pipe However the patient may have been affected at the outset, he seems invariably to have fallen into a swoon—the result of nervous exhaustion—from which music and music only could relieve him but neither music nor any other remedy could permanently cure him

Matthew Arnold Meets an Indian

Boston Transcript

A private letter from Dartmouth college says 'We heard Matthew Arnold here about a week ago There was a large audience present. Nearly every one was satisfied A curious little incident happened after the lecture Professor Parker gave him a reception and during the conversation Arnold was told that this college was founded for the education of the Indian, and that there was one here at present. Mr Arnold expressed a desire to see him, as he had never seen an Indian So Eastman, who is a full blooded Sioux, and a fine specimen of his race, was summoned He came into the room cool, collected, and master of the situation, whereas Mr. Arnold was completely nonplussed Whether his fancy had pictured a wild man, fierce with his war paint and tomahawk in hand, is not known, but at all events he colored up like a boy, held out his hand, and stammered out his British egotism coming up unawares—'Ah! eh! ah! you were there, you were there. How did you like it?' (referring to his lecture) It was an amusing sight to see the best representative of English culture so at a loss, and the young educated Indian standing before him so calm, collected, and even stoical I believe Arnold has in some of his writings doubted whether the education of the Indian was practicable "

THE RELIGIOUS WORLD.

Notes and Comments.

At the beginning of the new year it is appropriate to briefly survey the religious movement and progress of the past year. Eighteen hundred and eighty-three has been a year of remarkable vigor of religious thought and activity all over the world. In England the Christian public has been aroused to a great zeal in behalf of the poor and abandoned classes by a pamphlet called, "The Bitter Cry of Outcast London," written by Rev W C Preston, a Congregational minister. Mr. Moody's work is unabated in power and blessing.

In France, after 300 years of the domination of Roman Catholicism and infidelity, Protestantism is spreading rapidly and neither men nor women enough can be found to meet the demands of those who welcome this new gospel

In Germany a temperance movement, under the head of no less a person than the famous General von Moltke, has attracted wide attention. Sunday schools and Young Men's Christian associations have also notably increased and prospered.

In the United States, in all the religious denominations there has been a dropping of fetters and a movement out along new lines of action. The United Presbyterian church has passed against protest and against the ancient traditions of that body a resolution authorizing the use of musical instruments in the church. In the Presbyterian church the revision of the church standards has been discussed, and the exclusion of two ministers for heresy has called out strong protests from a part of the denomination. In the Methodist church the need of modifying the itinerant system has occasioned much discussion. The Andover controversy among the Congregationalists has been settled in the interest of the party of progress. Such events as the publication and large sale of "Freedom of the Faith" by Rev. T. T. Munger (Congregationalist), the very radical address on "Modern Biblical Criticism" by Professor D. G. Lyon (Baptist), and the volume on "Biblical Criticism" by Professor C. A. Briggs (Presbyterian), have been signs of the times. On missionary ground Chinese conservatism has been gradually yielding. The year closes with some twenty thousand Christain believers in China. In Japan missionaries speak of "a spiritual wave sweeping over the land." The Japanese and Christains are preparing to begin missionary work in Corea. Great missionary conferences have been held at Calcutta, Osaka and Constantinople and great revivals have occurred in the Turkish empire and in Japan.

Charles Reade is planning a series of studies of "Bible Characters," which Harper's Magazine will probably publish during 1884. It is Mr. Reade's idea that the half of the Bible has not yet been told; and he believes the pen of the practiced novelist can show what the Bible men and women really were, as thousands of sermons have not yet succeeded in doing.

Concerning dime-novel literature the Christian at Work will say, "The most solemn obligation rests upon every intelligent and upright man to aid in manufacturing a wholesome and virtuous public sentiment against the entire brood of wild, passionate, false heroic, sickly sentimental, lustful, crime-narrating and crime-originating literature that is now cursing our children's minds, and in many cases educating them either for the mad-house or the state prison, or the gallows. Parents especially are bound in duty to supervise the reading of their families. It may take a little time and patience to do this, but the time and patience are well spent and will be amply rewarded."

In an able article in the North American Review for January on Evil Incidents to Immigration, occur the following interesting statements: "In 1870 Mr. Z R Brockling stated as to the previous occupation of 100,000 prisoners in fifteen different prisons that 82 per cent. were laborers and servants, 16 per cent. only were artisans, and less than one per cent. came from the educated professions. These citations from recognized authorities show that poverty and lack of skilled tradesmanship is a marked peculiarity of the prison population.

The following statistics from the same paper strikingly show the value of churches and Sunday schools: During the three years ending September 30th, 1880, 904 were received into the Michigan state prison; their average age was about 31 years. Attendance at church—regular, 45; irregular, 174; never, 595; unknown, 1. Attendance at Sunday school regular, 15; irregular, 80, never, 808; unknown, 1. The well ordered family life shown by regular attendance upon religious worship and the influences which lead children and youth to the place of religious instruction are most effective in the prevention of crime, and next is the methodical acquisition of a trade."

A movement in several of our larger cities, which seems full of promise, is the establishment of kindergartens under the auspices of churches into which are gathered the children of the poor, whose homes are in the worse districts. Thus they are in a measure redeemed from the evil influences to which they are subject, brought under refining and Christian influences and into the knowledge and sympathy of persons who are both able and willing to give them a helping hand.

The third annual meeting of the Chicago Free Kindergarten association was held on Wednesday. The churches of the city showed much interest in the work of the association last year, and were active factors in producing so successful a result of the year's work. The junior class in the training-school numbers twenty-eight; the entire number of pupils in the training-school is eighty-one; all the pupils have received a high school education. Since January 1, of 1883, kindergartens have been opened one in the Lutheran church, on Wentworth avenue; one on College Grove avenue, one in the Tabernacle church, one in the Halstead Street Methodist church; one on Portland avenue, which is supported by Plymouth Congregational church; and one at the Protestant orphan asylum. The entire number of pupils enrolled is 811, and the average daily attendance is 722. The number of pupils attending these kindergarten of Chicago could be doubled were there teachers enough to take care of them, the association has during the past year secured a charter, and the future is bright with prospects of success, the association is an honor to the city, and an untold benefit to thousands who would remain in ignorance were it not for the school fostered by the support and oversight of this association.

CORONER'S INQUEST.

Verdict of the Jury in the Prigmore Murder Case.

Yesterday morning Coroner Perkins went to Eastonville to hold an inquest over the body of W C Prigmore, who was killed on New Year's night by Lewis Taylor. He was accompanied by Doctors Crocker and Kimball, of this city. Upon reaching there a jury consisting of D L Jackson, J W. Handley, J W. Linley, Eugene Walker, P. Locomoe and Walter Whitmore was summoned and the inquest was immediately proceeded with. Doctors Crocker and Kimball made an autopsy of the body and were the first witnesses sworn. They both testified that death had resulted directly from the wounds inflicted by Taylor and that any one of the wounds would have caused death. W. S. Gomer swore that he was present when the first altercation took place over the game of cards between Prigmore and Taylor and that when the latter went behind the bar to get the revolver he tried to persuade him not to use it and tried to take it away from him. He was present when the shooting occurred.

C. V. Vanvliet gave about the same testimony as that submitted by Gomer. Testified that he saw the scuffle between Taylor and Prigmore and saw Taylor empty five barrels of his revolver into Prigmore. Both men, he said, were intoxicated.

James Dobbins gave about the same testimony submitted by the others with the exception of the statement that he saw the fracas over the game of cards and heard Prigmore agree to drop the matter. He saw the revolver in the hands of Taylor both before and after the shooting; also saw Prigmore strike Taylor when he came into the saloon the second time.

Below we give the verdict as rendered by the jury

STATE OF COLORADO,
EL PASO COUNTY, January 4.

An inquisition holden at Eastonville in El Paso county, Colorado, on the 4th day of January, A. D. 1884 before E. G. Perkins coroner of said county, upon the dead body of W. C. Prigmore lying there dead by the jurors whose names are hereto subscribed. The said jurors upon their oaths do say that the said W. C. Prigmore came to his death at Eastonville, El Paso county, Colorado, on the 1st day of January, A. D. 1884, at the hands of one Louis Taylor of Eastonville, El Paso county, Colorado, by the means of a pistol in the hands of said Louis Taylor feloniously, unlawfully did kill said Prigmore.

In testimony whereof the said jurors have hereto set their hands the day and year aforesaid.

D. L. JACKSON,
J. W. HANDLEY,
J. W. LINLEY,
EUGENE WALKER,
P. LOCOMOE.
WALTER WHITMORE,

At Eastonville the feeling is very bitter against Taylor, and the verdict of the jury gave universal satisfaction. There was at one time talk of lynching Taylor, but now that he is safely behind the bars the excitement has died out.

MINING MATTERS.

Notes Gleaned from Our Exchanges.

PARK COUNTY.

Bulletin

The new tunnel on the Truman mine is now in 160 feet. The formation is quartzite with two well-defined walls. Mr. M. A Lawrence says he is taking out some good pay ore, which is improving as depth is gained. The rock is very hard and tight, which necessarily makes progress extremely slow. Arrangements have been completed to continue work during the winter, and Mr. L. expects to be jacking down pay ore in about forty days.

The main tunnel on the Little Lake property has been completed a distance of 233½ feet, and the drift on the fissure ninety-four feet. This is twenty-two feet in width where the main tunnel crosses, and Mr. Lawrence has now ordered a crosscut to be run to ascertain what it is made of. The drift tunnel has been in solid mineral for over fifty feet, and has gradually improved as depth was gained. This group of mines consists of the Little Lake, Earl, Duke, and Chicago, which gives 3,680 feet on the big fissure.

Fairplay Flume.

The strike in the Last Chance group, on Horseshoe gulch, that has been made since our last issue, is the most important discovery as yet made on that territory. A shaft was started 150 feet above the main tunnel, in the hope of striking the same vein that is developed in the latter. At 33 feet from the surface they broke into the vein and disclosed six feet of solid mineral, a galena and carbonate of lead ore. Nine assays have been made to determine the average value. They return from 25 to 71 ounces silver and 34 to 70 per cent. lead. Another ore house was ordered built at once by the superintendent, as it was too far to transport the ore conveniently to the larger one. The strike proves the vein is continuous and greatly enhances the value of the mine. Development is to be continued here as well as in the tunnel and incline below. The Last Chance is assuming the proportions of a big mine.

THE VALUE OF METALS IN COLORADO.

Leadville Democrat.

It has been customary here to estimate the value of our metallic products, such as lead and silver, by the standard of the commercial quotations in New York. The Democrat was the first journal to denounce this method and to introduce a change. It was particularly in regard to lead. The St. Louis, Chicago and Kansas City markets purchase and sell this metal at their own quotations, which are generally just so much lower than the New York prices as to balance the freight from those points to the east. The Harrison reduction works ship their bullion to the St. Louis Silver Smelting and Refining company, the Omaha and Grant works at Denver, and the Fryer Hill Smelting company to the Omaha Refining works. The Kansas City and Pittsburg Refining works have agents in the west for the purchase of bullion at the rates established by their works from time to time. These rates are more or less governed by the rise or decline of New York quotations and the difference between the New York and the Kansas City, St. Louis, Chicago and Pittsburg prices is regulated by the freight tariff, which sometimes favors one place more than the other.

If instead of the mystery which envelopes the bullion transactions of Colorado, we had a regular bullion market in Denver, Pueblo or Leadville, would the bullion quotations be 4 cents, 3.65 and so forth? No! We would read in the circulars: One thousand tons of bullion were sold yesterday at $28 (that is per ton), etc

We give another example. Kansas, for instance, produces a wealth of grain. Let us presume it produced last year 500,000,000 bushels of grain. Is its value calculated at New York or at Topeka and Kansas City quotations? It is the value of the product in the state which determines it. Kansas City, though in Missouri, is a Kansas grain market. And so it is with all other products. With silver and gold it is somewhat different, as New York is the sole money market, and its quotations are adopted in banking, commerce and manufacture. In the annual statistical reports of our state, the quantity of lead in tons and of ounces in silver constitutes our product, but its value can no more be counted at New York prices than can a cow be sold in Kansas City at New York quotations. Why shall we not say the lead in the bullion is worth $28 or $30, and the bullion buyer pays the railroad company as much for freight to the east as he does the smelter for the product. With gold it is different. It has a standard value. Silver is a fluctuating value, although national to a certain extent. That of lead, low as it is already, is even fictitious on account of the protective tariff, which guards against foreign competition. The coinage of more silver dollars has a host of opponents, and the free traders are already very strong in congress. What will become of us, if we pretend by our annual statistics that the danger of the depreciation of silver, is no impediment to prosperity in mining? Colorado statistics will be thrown into Belford's face when that plucky rooster rises to crow our interests. Is it the few enormously rich silver mines of the state, or the thousands of low grade which constitute the future of Colorado?

We are convinced of the latter, and feel also assured that the silver production of the state has materially decreased. Therefore let us have the truth in the matter. Until the positive settlement of the tariff agitation and the silver question, outside capital will at all events be slow in entering the state, and our home capitalists are strong enough to seize upon any and all desirable properties which shall meanwhile come into the market.

Poisoned Meat

MONTREAL, January 4.—Sixteen boarders and three sisters of Notre Dame de Lourdes convent are dangerously ill from poisoning. Yesterday meat pie was served at dinner. All who partook were soon after seized with vomiting and cramps. Two boarders are dangerously ill, the remainder are recovering. Doctors say the poisoning is the result of tainted meat, which, although condemned by the civil inspector, was sold to the convent.

Colliers' Convention.

PITTSBURG, January 4. The coal miners' state convention adjourned sine die to-night. Resolutions were adopted giving employers one week's notice before taking decided action on any strike, denouncing the importation of foreign labor and requesting congress to legislate against it and suggesting the establishment of a national bureau of labor statistics for the benefit of legislators

Considerable excitement was caused on the streets yesterday afternoon by the destruction of the Tabor Grand opera house at Denver, but it was ascertained later in the afternoon that only a small portion of the building was destroyed

There will be tableaux and an oyster supper at the loan exhibition to-night.

Unless something of a local nature comes up there will be no attraction at the opera house for some time The first company booked is Frank Mayo in "Davy Crockett." Mayo is drawing largely at the east this season He will appear here three weeks from next Monday

The Crowell Foot Ball team left for Denver on the early train this morning to play a game with the Rugby team of that city. From present indications the weather will not be very favorable for the game Should the mercury be down below zero to-morrow there is but little probability that either of the teams will care about playing.

Several very thorough tests of the Ruxton creek extension to the water works just completed by Messrs. Russell and Alexander have been made and everything has proven satisfactory Several of the weak sections of pipe in the old main have burst; otherwise the additional pressure has done no harm. The work will probably be formally accepted by the council on Monday night.

In a circular dated January 1st, Coates Bros, wool commission merchants of Philadelphia state that during the past month the market has been remarkably quiet, although prices, as a rule, have remained firm. Colorado wools are quiet but firmly held, and the following quotations are given:

COLORADO
Medium and Fine, choice	21to24
Medium and Fine, average	20to21
Common and Quarter Blood	18to20
Coarse Carpet	16to17
NEW MEXICAN

" " Coarse	16to17
Black	15to16

The Denver Tribune thus explains the charge it made against the "Tender House Plants" the other day, "The Rugby club will accept the challenge of the Crowells to play on Saturday. Mr. Fillmore, of the Rugbys, called at the Tribune office yesterday and said it was a mistake about the Crowells not wanting to play in the snow. It was his fault, as he told Mr. Martin that several of the team had sore throats and could not play on any but a fine day.

The Tribune was informed that the Crowells were to blame by the Rugbys, and is the first to take back the attack on the Crowell team. It is probable that the skill of the Colorado Springs boys will win the game, but the Rugbys will fight hard for the victory"

A Blessing to All Mankind.

In these times when our newspapers are flooded with patent medicine advertisements it is gratifying to know what to procure that will certainly cure you. If you are bilious, blood out of order, liver inactive, or generally debilitated, there is nothing in the world that will cure you so quickly as Electric Bitters. They are a blessing to all mankind, and can be had for only fifty cents a bottle at F. E Robinson's dwk-5-1y
